

Risk Management: Case Study

Client:

A growing non-profit organization

Challenge:

Pressure to adhere to government requirements was posing a daunting challenge for the organization.

Solution:

Already burdened by significant risk management challenges, the company now faced potentially stiff penalties that would be the inevitable result of continued noncompliance. The company therefore called upon IGBS to assume an interim management role within the company, as the senior director of the organizations compliance operations. In this position, IGBS took responsibility for redesigning the overall compliance department, identifying and negotiating contracts with new HIPPA compliant suppliers, and improving the company's internal procedures. These tasks dramatically improved the overall operating costs and met deadlines for the government implementation, resulting in zero penalties.
